Special al Issue of Review of International Economics on Migration and Culture

Special issue Editors: Gil S Epstein and Ira N. Gang
Bar-Ilan University Rutgers University

This special issue will emphasize cultural aspects of migration both from host and home country perspectives. Possible topics include the interaction between the host country population with the migrants, intermarriage, assimilation, cultural conflicts and tension, international trade issues, interest group formation and lobbying, public policy, pension issues and so on.

We seek original high quality academic work that extends, enriches, refines, and challenges our understanding of the broad array of issues related to migration and culture.

The special issue will consist of approximately 12 papers of original work which will go under a refereeing process.

We are inviting both theory and empirical papers on the topic.

We cannot promise acceptance of papers and it will be a direct outcome of a referee process.

Technical information:

1. There is a standard page limit of 25 pages in total.
2. Total 5 figures/tables. These are included in the page count.
3. Less than 30 equations
4. Less than 2 pages or 40 references.
5. Submission by October 31 2011.
6. Each accepted paper must pay submission fee (USD 80).

Please let us know if you are interested in submit a paper for consideration for the special issue of RIE.

Please send to either:

Professor Gil S. Epstein: Gil.Epstein@biu.ac.il
Professor Ira N. Gang: gang@economics.rutgers.edu